

Measure A: Council Compensation Adjustment and Inflation Limitation Measure

The following provides information related to Measure A, placed on the November 2026 ballot for Roseville voters’ consideration.

What is Measure A?

Measure A is a ballot initiative that would increase compensation for Roseville City Councilmembers. Measure A would:

- Increase councilmember compensation from $600/month (set by voters in 2000) to $2,550/month.
- Add annual inflation adjustments based on the California Consumer Price Index (CPI), capped at no more than 5% per year.
- Maintain the City Charter requirement that any change to council compensation must be approved by voters.
- Councilmembers do not currently and would not receive any City paid for benefits like medical, dental, vision, etc.

Why is Measure A on the ballot?

The City Charter requires voter approval for any change to council compensation.

The last adjustment to compensation occurred 26 years ago, when Roseville crossed the 75,000 population threshold and voters approved the current $600/month rate.

That measure included no mechanism for future adjustments, so compensation has remained unchanged despite growth in the city’s size and responsibilities since 2000.

Why $2,550 per month?

While Roseville is a charter city, the $2,550 amount is the limit set in State law for general law cities with a population size similar to Roseville. It also is intended to move Roseville closer to cities with comparable responsibilities, particularly those overseeing municipal utilities and full-service operations.

How is Roseville’s municipal oversight different from other cities in the region?

Roseville is a full-service city, meaning the City Council oversees a broad range of municipal services such as utilities, parks, libraries, police, and fire that, in many other cities, might be managed by separate and independent agencies, such as the following:

- Private companies
- Special districts
- Joint powers authorities
- Other agencies

What is the total impact to the City’s budget?

The total annual impact to the City’s budget is $117,000. This is .013% of the City’s total budget of $877 million.

Roseville in the year 2000 vs. today

	 City Population	 Housing units	 Full-Time Employees	 City Budget	 Number of business licenses	 Number of jobs
THEN	79,921	31,708	743	$239.2m	6,629	62,591
NOW	165,592	65,592	1,365	$877m	13,966	94,000

City Council compensation
$600/month
since 2000

For more information visit Roseville.ca.gov/MeasureA

