PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS

Please confirm your project meets system configuration requirements below:

Sensors Installed – Sensor(s) are installed in the hood exhaust collar or within the hood that sense cooking conditions and allow the system to automatically vary the rate of exhaust and make-up air flow. Or the system must have capabilities to communicate directly with cooking appliances varying the ventilation rate based on cook cycles.

VSD or EC Motor – Control system is used in conjunction with a variable-speed drive (VSD) or directly varies the speed of an EC (Electronically Communicating) motor on the exhaust and supply fans.

If single exhaust, use balancing dampers – If system is a single exhaust fan installed on multiple hoods, balancing dampers are used to vary the airflow in the separate hoods.

Controlling Supply Airflow – The control system is able to control the supply airflow proportional to the exhaust airflow on the makeup air side by either varying the speed of the MUA (Make Up Air) or DOAS (Dedicated Outdoor Air System) fan motor or by varying the amount of outside air by controlling a damper. This can be done indirectly by the DCKV (Demand Controlled Kitchen Ventilation) system through EMS (Energy Management System) integration or direct communication with the MUA (Make Up Air) or DOAS (Dedicated Outdoor Air System).

If New Hood, Limited CFM – Total of all kitchen hoods' exhaust is  $\leq 5,000$  cfm, due to Title 24 mandate
