

What is RCONA?

In 1993, the City of Roseville Police Department began the formation of Neighborhood Associations as a part of their community policing philosophy. Today the City is arranged into 42 Neighborhood Associations, with assigned Neighborhood Police Officers and a team of city staff led by the Neighborhood Services Division that work directly with the associations.

Citizens and City staff work together on a variety of projects including crime prevention, park development, resolution of development-related issues, neighborhood team building, and more. Neighborhood Association Representatives make up the Roseville Coalition of Neighborhood Associations (RCONA).

RCONA's Purpose

- To raise the level of community participation by citizens for the purpose of improving and maintaining the quality of life within the City of Roseville.
- To work with neighborhood associations in resolving social, physical and economic problems within neighborhood, and deal with other important neighborhood issues.
- To facilitate communications within and between neighborhoods.
- To provide instruction and support to neighborhood association leaders.
- To pursue funds from any and all sources for use in the community and neighborhoods.
- Revitalize inactive neighborhoods.
- Organize the residents, property owners, organizations, and businesses within each area into a neighborhood association.
- Bring all neighborhoods together in a coalition of associations.
